Washington PostAllen W. Dulles Named
CIA Deputy Director

Allen W. Dulles, New York attorney and one-time career diplomat, was named yesterday as deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, who heads CIA, appointed Dulles to succeed William H. Jackson of Princeton, N. J., who resigned because of the pressure of private business.

Jackson, deputy director since last October, will continue with CIA as special assistant to the director on a part-time basis.

Dulles is a brother of John Foster Dulles, Republican advisor to Secretary of State Acheson.

Washington StarAllen Dulles Named
CIA Deputy Director

Allen W. Dulles, New York attorney, former career diplomat and wartime Office of Strategic Services official, has been named deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, CIA director, appointed Mr. Dulles yesterday to succeed William J. Jackson of Princeton, N. J., who resigned to give more time to private business.

Mr. Dulles is a brother of John Foster Dulles, Republican consultant to Secretary of State Acheson.

During the war he was chief of the OSS mission based in Switzerland which helped negotiate the German surrender in Italy. He joined CIA last year as deputy director for plans. In that post he will be succeeded by Frank G. Wisner, who has been with CIA since 1948.
